TWO OF THE CHILDREN CORROB-ORATE MOTHER'S TESTIMONY.

Water Damage Suit of Mary Kraack vs. Draper Irrigation Company On Trial-District Court Orders-Session of the United States Court-General Notes.

Deputy Clerk George E. Blair, as eferce, heard testimony in the divorce sult of Cyrene Honson against Stephen Hanson, yesterday, the application for a separation being based on the grounds of extreme crueity.

Mrs. Kunson took the stand in her own behalf and testified that they lived together until Feb. 2 of this year. Her husband often treated her in a very cruel manner, on one occasion striking her in the face and giving her a black eye. He was in the habit of talking vilely before the children and often noted so indecently in the house that she was obliged to leave him. After-wards he was sorry and asked her to come back.

All the yards are busy and the teams are working early and late. One yard-man declared yesterday at the close of business, his company was 240 tons short on delivery, the facilities not being sufficient to enable them to handle all could desired.

the party of officials yesterday and held a long conference with Agent Moore at the Knutsford last evening. Mr. Clark said he knew very little about the conditions which governed the fight, as it was purely local, and between deniera. That was about the sum and substance of his statement. It is jearned, however, the Union Pacinic commany will furnish all its dealers with all the coal they want and that their asents, who supply direct to the customers, are going to stay in the light until the close. In fact, one of them has stated he will stay in this until the other Fellows are satisfied. Indications point to a speedy settlement, although nothing has been done to date which has been of especial significance in this divestion. Informal conferences have been held which load to the belief that very soon a sort of general conference will be held which will result in the old rates being restored. Some companies may be able to sell at the present rates, but judging from the statements of nearly all of them the greater portion of them are simply doing business at ruinous figures and unless railroad rates are reduced they cannot keep up.

Manager Marsh of the Diamond company, the one which made the first cut, stated last night at the close of business, that he had been doing exceptionally well and had nothing to regret. He stated that as yet he had received no overtures from any of the belance, looking to ward a restoration, but was willing to great with the others when the time came. This would seem to indicate that the Diamond had an object in making this reduction.

Other dealers declare the Diamond merely cut the rates in order to gain a footing in the community and took this way of advertising tiself, believing it cheaper than column rates. This assertion is declared by Marah, who declares he had nentirely different object in which would tend to bring alout a meeting to discontinue in the community and took this way of advertising itself, believing it cheaper than column rates. This assertion is declad by Marah, w Allahabad Pioneer: Some remark able Buddhist antiquities recently discovered in India have been described by Vincent Smith, a well-known autiby Vincent Smith, a well-known auti-quary. Some years ago the discovery of an inscribed piliar, erected in the third century, indicated with certainty the site of Kapilavastu, the home of Gautama Buddha, who lived about 500 B. C. The ruins of this ancient city are now covered by jungle, but are being excavated, and thus buildings more ancient than any previously known in India are being brought to light. light.

Another discovery, also in Nepaules territory, close to the British frentier, is that of a brick turnulus containing relies of Buddha himself. These are fragments of bone in a decayed wooden vesel, with which we found five small vesel, with which we found five small vascs of soapstone and a very fite bowl of rock cruystal, all containing gold ornaments, pearls and precious stones, besides various objects delicately wrought in crystal and agais. This collection was deposited in a massive coffer of sandstone, buried under its feet of masonry. An inscription on one of the vases states that the relicate those of the Buildha, and Indicates that the tumulus was constructed that the tumulus was constructed about 300 B. C.
